Three Rumanian soldiers are reported to have been killed.

It was announced to-night that the Rumanian mobilisation precautions will be extended to the frontier.

An official statement says that Rumania will demobilise when adjoining countries do likewise.

Foreign Correspondents report increased military activity in Hungary and it is evident that more men are being called up.

ROME, Mar. 22. ITALY'S PREPAREDNESS campaign is authoritatively reported to have been speeded up in the past few days, with more reservists and technicians being called to the colours.

According to well-informed quarters, Reservists belonging to the classes of 1901, 1902, 1903, and possibly 1904, who were exempt from previous calls in the past months, were again summoned to military headquarters, and all attached to bases have been ordered to report to barracks by midnight on Thursday.—United Press.

DIPLOMATS ACTIVE

In addition to seeing the British Ambassador, Colonel Beck's callers to-day included the diplomatic envoys of France, Germany, Rumania and Hungary, says a "Reuter" message from Warsaw.

Observers there consider that Poland is in a difficult position. While the uncomfortable feeling of German encirclement is heightened by the fate of Memel, it is realised that a declaration hostile to Germany might entail unpleasant consequences, especially as it is believed that Germany has respected Poland's position in Danzig and Bogumin because Poland refrained from associating herself too closely with a policy potentially hostile to the Reich.

REUNITED with his wife who had parted from him, 36-year-old Mr. Richard Goddard, a Southwark wireless engineer and father of three children, told recently how he came to hide his nine-year-old daughter Sylvia after cutting her hair and dressing her in boy's clothes.

Earlier in the day a summons accusing him of illtreating and neglecting the child had been dismissed by the Tower Bridge magistrate, Mr. Bernard Campion.

London, Mar. 10. Henry Cotton may be the world's greatest golfer or the most misunderstood individual of the links.

And while everyone wonders which of these stories are correct, tall Henry goes quietly about his business making perhaps more money than any other golfer.

America wants Henry to pay it a visit this summer and cross clubs with her best players. But Cotton, sio,000 in cold cash and a round pr trip ticket on the Queen Mary.

Latest Petticoat Rules

The navy blue woollen suit above has a blouse and petticoat in broderie anglaise to go with it. Below is a black woollen pinafore frock worn over petticoat in white pique, which is longer than the skirt. The blouse is also white.

Petticoat Dresses

PRUYERE has made "petticoat dresses"; the petticoat, in white pique is worn under a skirt in dark wool, with braces placed in such a way that the underskirt is visible above and below the outer one.

There are many petticoats which have ribbons passed through eyelet embroidery.

Fastenings

ARE petticoats tied at the waist or if they are attached to a sleeveless top.

It would seem that they are all hooked around the waistand not always well hooked. At any rate, at Piguet's opening show, one of his mannequins must have hooked hers badly in her hurry, for, to the joy of the spectators, she lost her petti-coat, hoops and all, in the middle of the salon.

BEAUTY TIPS

Circles under the eyes do not always indicate eyestrain or poor health. There may be an excess of skin pigment in this area or per-haps there is insufficient fatty tissue. There is little you can do about the first, but gentle massage with a rich cream and alternate hot and cold opplications to stimulate the circulation will often cause the circles to disappear when they are due to the latter condition.

Facial, mannerisms, frowning and nervousness are often to blame when fine lines and crows-feet appear in the young face. Remove the cause and you can at least soften the lines. Smooth a little cream around the eyes at night, too, as the skin in this area is thinner and more sensitive than that elsewhere on the face. CTARCHED frills, batiste, broderie anglaise, coloured ribbons, floral cretonne -all are used for petticoats like grannie used to wear.

Women are very much preoccupied just now with one problem presented by the knee-length crinoline which is the very newest thing in fashion and, in fact, by all these very short wide. daytime skirts.

· How is one supposed to get in and out of a car to sit down, to bend over, to walk on a windy day in these dresses without being terriblyindiscreet?

Very Important

WOMEN'S lingerie styles are going to be influenced by these fashions. Petticoats are accorded an extreme importance in almost all the collections, and there are even certain houses which show dresses that are no more than transparent tunics which cover a slip which is the chief interest of the model.

The petticoat is very often so delicately worked, so subtly designed, that the dress seems to be added as a pure matter of tradition!

The petticoat is so important that it often peeps beneath the frock to make sure that it is

Some Are Starched

THESE petticoats are often in pique with a ruffle of the fabric of the dress, or in "broderie anglaise" in starched batiste or linen; there are others in plaid taffetas with a pleated ruffle; still others are in specially prepared very coarse lace, which is so stiff that it serves the purpose of hoops.

A great many afternoon dresses have wide bands of contrasting fabric at the hem to simulate a petticoat. You can see how important the petticoat has become in fashion since, when one is not really worn under the dress, the designer indicates its influence.

Quite Victorian

TACH dressmaker has his own favoured style of petticoat, which is distinctly different from the others. Piguet, who is the foremost advocate of the short crinoline, shows us petticoats like those of good, neat little Victorian girls, very much in the note of his collection.

These petticoats are very wide, trimmed with "broderie anglaise," through which a narrow black ribbon is slotted and tied in a tiny flat bow, and have hoops in them which widen the dress.

He usually places the hoop just at the knee. On the other hand, Rochas prefers crinolines in which the hoops are placed just below the hips.

Half Her Hospital

Although she is only three years old, Although she is only three years old, little Monica has spent 13 months of her life with her legs in splints. Suffering from rickets, she has been under treatment at the Great Ormond-street Hospital for Children, and has been one of the hospital's most cheerful patients. Her fortitude has been rewarded, for Monica is now cured of the disease and left hospital for a Carshalton, Surrey, convalescent home. She is seen saying good-bye to the nurse who has cared for her during her illness.

Here is a problem picture. It was taken as guests arrived at Holy Trinity Church, Brompton, S.W., for the wedding of Mr. Humphrey Wainey and Miss Frances Terry. This one arrived in his shirtsleeves and finished his dressing on the pavement!

Cotton, Britain's Greatest Golfer

Harder To Interview Him Than A Cabinet Minister In England

London, Mar. 10. Henry Cotton may be the world's greatest golfer or the most misunderstood individual of the links. And while everyone wonders which of these stories are correct, tall Henry goes quietly about his business making perhaps more money than any other golfer.

America wants Henry to pay it a visit this summer and cross clubs with her best players. But Cotton, Billiards according to the latest reports, wants $10,000 in cold cash and a round trip ticket on the Queen Mary.

I tried to get to see this mystery man of the links for several days but it's as hard getting a personal interview with the King of England. Cotton is like a Cabinet Minister. ## Latest Petticoat Rules

The navy blue woollen suit above has a blouse and petticoat in broderie anglaise to go with it. Below is a black woollen pinafore frock worn over petticoat in white pique, which is longer than the skirt. The blouse is also white.

Petticoat Dresses

PRUYERE has made "petticoat dresses"; the petticoat, in white pique is worn under a skirt in dark wool, with braces placed in such a way that the underskirt is visible above and below the outer one.

There are many petticoats which have ribbons passed through eyelet embroidery.

Fastenings

ARE petticoats tied at the waist or if they are attached to a sleeveless top.

It would seem that they are all hooked around the waistand not always well hooked. At any rate, at Piguet's opening show, one of his mannequins must have hooked hers badly in her hurry, for, to the joy of the spectators, she lost her petticoat, hoops and all, in the middle of the salon.

BEAUTY TIPS

Circles under the eyes do not always indicate eyestrain or poor health. There may be an excess of skin pigment in this area or per-haps there is insufficient fatty tissue. There is little you can do about the first, but gentle massage with a rich cream and alternate hot and cold applications to stimulate the circulation will often cause the circles to disappear when they are due to the latter condition.

Facial mannerisms, frowning and nervousness are often to blame when fine lines and crows-feet appear in the young face. Remove the cause and you can at least soften the lines. Smooth a little cream around the eyes at night, too, as the skin in this area is thinner and more sensitivo than that elsewhere on the face. Leave a faint film of cream on the lids and around the eyes when you go out in the winter air.

Tears are nature's own eyewash and tonic-so do not be afraid to shed a few when you feel like crying. Crying is sometimes a good sedative for weary nerves, too. Do it in private, however, as others might not understand that you are merely being scientific.

DD recipes should be put in an envelope stuck into the back of your cookery book. Oven shelves should be sprinkled with salt to prevent burning,

Egg whites will whip more quickly if the basin is slightly warmed. Remember to dry fruit well after washing it, before you add it to the

Your cauliflower stands less chance of breaking if you scoop a deep hole in the stalk instead of cutting it ucross before cooking it.

CTARCHED frills, batiste, broderie anglaise, coloured ribbons, floral cretonne -all are used for petticoats like grannie used to wear. Women are very much preoccupied just now with one problem presented by the knee-length crinoline which is the very newest thing in fashion and, in fact, by all these very short wide, daytime skirts.

How is one supposed to get in and out of a car to sit down, to bend over, to walk on a windy day in these dresses without being terriblyindiscreet?"

Very Important

WOMEN'S lingerie styles are going to be influenced by these fashions. Petticoats are accorded an extreme importance in almost all the collections, and there are even certain houses which show dresses that are no more than transparent tunics which cover a slip which is the chief interest of the model.

The petticoat is very often so delicately worked, so subtly designed, that the dress seems to be added as a pure matter of tradition!

The petticoat is so important that it often peeps beneath the frock to make sure that it is

Some Are Starched

THESE petticoats are often in pique with ruffle of the fabric of the dress, or in "broderie anglaise" in starched batiste or linen; there are others in plaid taffetas with a pleated ruffle; still others are in specially prepared very coarse lace, which is so stiff that it serves the purpose of hoops.

A great many afternoon dresses have wide bands of contrasting fabric at the hem to simulate a petticoat. You can see how important the petticoat has become in fashion since, when one is not really worn under the dress, the designer indicates its influence.

Quite Victorian

FACH dressmaker has his own favoured style of petticont, which is distinctly different from the others. Piguet, who is the foremost advocate of the short crinoline, shows us petticoats like those of good, neat little Victorian girls, very much in the note of his collection.

These petticoats are very wide, trimmed with "broderie anglaise," through which a narrow black ribbon is slotted and tied in a tiny flat bow, and have hoops in them which widen the dress.

Sequel To Stanley Accident

Claim Against Lorry Driver

ARISING out of an accident in Stanley Road on October 12 last, when a motor car and a lorry collided, an action claiming $55.50 damages was brought by Woo Chung, trading as the Fei Hang' Motor-car Company, against Tsoi Po-tin before Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell in the |Summary Court this morning.

Mr. D. E. Evans, for plaintiff, said that the accident occurred as his ellent's car, which was driven at that time by Luk Wah, was about to turn into the road leading to the Maryknoll Mission at Stanley. The car had previously overtaken a lorry, about 45 yards from the junction of Island Road and Stanley Road.

As he was about 25 yards from the Mission, the driver of the car applied the foot-brake to slow down and put out his arm to indicate he was turning. Before he had completed the turn, however, he was run into from behind on the near part of the lorry, In order to prevent his car from turning over as the result of the impact, the driver turned, back to the left into Stanley Road but was struck again. The damage to the car was slight, the repairs affected costing only $55.50, which was the subject of the claim. PRIESTS IN CAR At the time of the accident, the car was carrying three priests to the mission, but they had since gone to the interior of China. Luk Wah gave evidence bearing out Mr. Evans's statement, and added that the larry was loaded with bricks and building material. He was travelling between 20 and 22 miles an hour, and the lorry was going at 14-15 miles per hour when he over-

After the accident, the driver of the lorry blamed him for turning at too slow a rate, but later admitted that the brake of his vehicle was not good and tha he could not stop because of the heavy load. Cross-examined by Mr. W. M. Brown, for the defence, witness denied that he stopped his car suddenly but was going at five miles per Kwok Wah, driver of the lorry, testified that plaintiff's car suddenly slowed down when he was about ten yards behind it, but admitted in cross-examination that he did not apply his brakes until only two yards

|German People | 2 In Mandates British Minority In Cameroons

LONDON, Mar. 22. "YES SIR", said the Colonial Secretary in the House of Commons to-day when Commander Bartlett asked whether, in view of the fact that German subjects in the mandated territory of the British Cameroons outnumber the British by three to one, he would consider the advisability of increasing the police forces there.

The respective military strength of one company of the Royal West African Frontier Police and the German catapult ship stationed at Bathurst, Gambia, was sought in the House of Commons by a member, accompanied by the suggestion that in view of the great strategic importance of Gambia, the British garrison should be reinforced.

Mr. Malcolm MacDonald said that the German personnel of the catapult ship, according to recent information, totalled 37 shore staff, seven standby, and an aircraft crew of five. These were not military forces. The Bathurst garrison consisted of three officers and 100 other ranks. The strength of the garrison was periodically reviewed like other West African garrisons .-- Reuter.

"The position was further complicated by the fact, that the owners of godowns in Hongkong which we had occupied on lease, demanded such inordinately increased rents that we decided it was better to terminate the leases and make our own arrangements. "Added to this we also had to give up other buildings which had been placed at our disposal for storage purposes in 1937 as well as a large area of leased ground on the Rallway front at Chalham Road.

TEMPORARY GODOWNS

"The Company therefore first of all leased an area of land at Cosmopotitan Dock and constructed on it a temporary godown to accommodut. 5,000 tons; at the same time, arrangerments were made with the Dairy Farm, Ice & Cold Storage Co., Ltd to lease the old Brewery site at Laichikok, and the old building on this property was reconditioned to store a further 7,000 tons. Plans were also put in hand for the construction of a permanent concrete godown with granite block walls on our property at K.M.L. 49, the present timber yard, which would take 12,000

INCREASE IN EARNINGS

"Allothis gave us 40,000 tons of additional storage space and the large increase in earnings over 1937 shown in the Accounts is due to this factor; had this space not been available the Company would have been compelled to shut out a large quantity of Hongkong cargo, and would have been unable to accept the large volume of new business offering.

HOSTILITIES IN CHINA

"The commencement of hostilities In South China last October contributed further to the congestion in the godowns; large quantities of cargo normally moving direct through the Port had to be placed on storage. "I want to stress the fact that the Company's tariff rates have not been increased in any way since the commencement of the Sino-Japanese hostilities in August 1937.

"In fact, our storage and transhipment rates are the same to-day as delay. they were in 1924, and throughout the past fifteen years the only increases made in our charges have been an increased bertning charged from the 1st June 1930 to vessels using the Wharves, and the charge for landing cargo for steamers' account which was increased by 20% in April 1937 to meet higher operating costs.

"Compared with other Ports, our charges are still the cheapest in the Far East. "During the year, the total number of vessels discharging cargo to the Company's premises at Kowloon was 1,022 as against 1,255 for 1937. ## Cotton, Britain's Greatest Golfer

Harder To Interview Him Than A Cabinet Minister In England

(By George Kirksey, "United Press" Staff Correspondent)

London, Mar. 10. Henry Cotton may be the world's greatest golfer or' the most misunderstood individual of the links. And while everyone wonders which of these stories are correct, tall Henry goes quietly about his business making perhaps more money than any other golfer. America wants Henry to pay it a visit this summer and cross clubs with her best players. But Cotton, Billiards according to the latest reports, wants Cotton is like a Cabinet Minister. It you want to see him or make a booking with him, you first must get in touch with his secretary and present the necessary credentials or you never see him.

It's strictly put up or shut up with Henry. If you want to talk to him, there's only one language he understands—the melody of clinking coins or the crackling of bills. ## Latest Petticoat Rules

The navy blue woollen suit above has a blouse and petticoat in broderie anglaise to go with it. Below is a black woollen pinafore frock worn over petticoat in white pique, which is longer than the skirt. The blouse is also white.

Petticoat Dresses

PRUYERE has made "petticoat dresses"; the petticoat, in white pique is worn under a skirt in dark wool, with braces placed in such a way that the underskirt is visible above and below the outer one.

There are many petticoats which have ribbons passed through eyelet embroidery.

Fastenings

ARE petticoats tied at the waist or if they are attached to a sleeveless top.

It would seem that they are all hooked around the waistand not always well hooked. At any rate, at Piguet's opening show, one of his mannequins must have hooked hers badly in her hurry, for, to the joy of the spectators, she lost her petticoat, hoops and all, in the middle of the salon.

BEAUTY TIPS

Circles under the eyes do not always indicate eyestrain or poor health. There may be an excess of skin pigment in this area or perhops there is insufficient fatty tis-sue. There is little you can do about the first, but gentle massage with a rich cream and alternate hot and cold applications to stimulate the circulation will often cause the circles to disappear when they are due to the latter condition.

Facial mannerisms, frowning and nervousness are often to blame when fine lines and crows-feet appear in the young face. Remove the cause and you can at least soften the lines. Smooth a little cream around the eyes at night, too, as the skin in this area is thinner and more sensitive than that elsewhere on the face. Leave a faint film of cream on the lids and around the eyes when you go out in the winter air.

Tears are nature's own eyewash and tonic-so do not be atraid to shed a few when you feel like crying. Crying is sometimes a good sedative for weary nerves, too. Do it in private, however, as others might not understand that you are merely being scientific.

ODD recipes should be put in on envelope stuck into the back of your cookery book. Oven shelves should be sprinkled with salt to prevent burning. Egg whites will whip more quickly if the basin is slightly warmed.

Your cauliflower stands less chance of breaking if you scoop a deep hole in the stalk instead of cutting it across before cooking it.

Remember to dry fruit well after washing it, before you add it to the

Very Important

WOMEN'S lingerie styles are going to be influenced by these fashions. Petticoats are accorded an extreme importance in almost all the collections, and there are even certain houses which show dresses that are no more than transparent tunics which cover a slip which is the chief interest of the model.

The petticoat is very often so delicately worked, so subtly designed, that the dress seems to be added as a pure matter of tradition!

The petticoat is so important that it often preps beneath the frock to make sure that it is

Some Are Starched THESE petticoats are often in pique with

ruffle of the fabric of the dress, or in "broderie anglaise" in starched batiste or linen; there are others in plaid taffetas with a pleated ruffle; still others are in specially prepared very coarse lace, which is so stiff that it serves the purpose of hoops.

A great many afternoon dresses have wide bands of contrasting fabric at the hem to simulate a petticoat. You can see how important the petticoat has become in fashion since, when one is not really worn under the dress, the designer indicates its influence.

Quite Victorian

TACH dressmaker has his own favoured style of petticoat, which is distinctly different from the others. Piguet, who is the foremost advocate of the short crinoline, shows us petticoats like those of good, neat little Victorian girls, very much in the note of his collection.

These petticoats are very wide, trimmed with "broderie anglaise," through which a narrow black ribbon is slotted and tied in a tiny flat bow, and have hoops in them which widen the dress.

He usually places the hoop just at the knee. On the other hand, Rochas prefers crinolines in which the hoops are placed just below the hips.
